

Get clear identification in harsh environments

with High-Performance Cable Tags

Keep your thick cables and cable bundles identified in every environment with high-performance cable tags. These tear-resistant tags are available in two different temperature grade options — B-338 high-temperature performance and B-388 standard-temperature performance, making them both ideal for use in the aerospace, satellite and defense industries. When you choose these materials, you'll not only get labels that conform better than competitors' labels, you'll also reduce waste because these labels don't have a liner. Check out these other valuable features your work will benefit from:

- Low outgassing (B-338)
- Unique product design that reduces foreign object debris and wire abrasion
- Legibility after exposure to industrial solvents
- Excellent crack resistance at high and low temperatures
